

An insight into Gilbert White of Selborne, the 18th Century naturalist

You are all invited to a talk by David Standing, the retired head gardener about this pioneering English naturalist, ecologist, and ornithologist.

Save the date: 22nd May at 7.30
at the WI hall Crookham village

Gilbert White was a pioneering English naturalist who transformed the way we look at the natural world.

His lifelong love and talent for observing and recording nature influenced Charles Darwin, among many others.

Cost: members £3, non members £5
To include tea/coffee/juice with biscuits.

As usual there will be a raffle

This should prove to be a very interesting and informative evening

To reserve seats, contact Caroline Morris:
caroline.morris1958@gmail.com

